

Posting Links

Type a brief description or note in the "Write something" text field if you like, to let people know why you are sharing the link and why they might enjoy it rather than pass it over.

The screenshot shows the Facebook profile for Northwest Bird Club, a Non-Profit Organization. The page features a cover photo with various birds and the text "Bird Club" and "Northwest Bird Club". Below the cover photo are navigation tabs for Timeline, About, Photos, Likes, and More. A search bar is visible, along with a status update section. A red arrow points to the "Write something" text field, which is highlighted with a red box and the text: "This is where you would ask a question Or post a link to another website...".

Paste the link into the text field at the end of your message. The link should load a preview pane on the message, which usually displays the website's title, a preview picture and a brief description. If the page has no primary image, then no preview picture appears...

The screenshot shows a Facebook post from The Rainforest Site, dated March 29 at 10:00am. The post title is "Woodpecker Vs. Squirrel. This is intense!". The main image is a video preview showing a squirrel and a woodpecker on a tree trunk. Below the video is a red play button icon. The post text reads: "See a Squirrel Take On a HUGE Woodpecker! The acorn woodpecker spends much of its time pecking thousands of holes into its territorial tree, and filling those holes with just as many acorns. Like all woodpeckers, the acorn woodpecker can peck up to 12,000 times per day at a...". The source is listed as "BLOG.THERAINFORESTSITE.COM".

Click the "Post" button to share the link and/or message.

See a Squirrel Take On a HUGE Woodpecker!
The acorn woodpecker spends much of its time pecking thousands of holes int...
BLOG.THERAINFORESTSITE.COM

Available images Hide

😊 📍 Post

